City Experience Helpful Candidate Johnson Claims

Waging a vigorous campaign for election to the City Council next month is Orin P. Johnson, assistant city manager for Torrance until recently.

"Now that my employment with the city has been terminated, I am free to offer myself as a candidate for the City Council in the coming election on April 12," Johnson reported in a letter sent to a number of his backers.

Johnson said the four years he had served as assistant city manager here had given him a great insight into the workings of government and had offered a real challenge to his ingenuity in getting things done.

"I BELIEVE I am especially qualified for this important post for the following reasons: I have worked closely with all commissions, city departments, and many citizens groups in their various activities; attended all Council agenda staff briefings and Council meetings; prepared several major reports of high impact on the city; assisted in the development of the fiscal budget each year; served as coordinator of all public relations activities including the annual Armed Forces Day Parade, the Boy Scout Parade, Junior Citizens Day, and others."

Johnson said such a wide and varied scope of activity had enabled him to learn where operational problems are and how to correct them.

"THERE ARE so many things that need to be done to improve the city and give relief to some of its problem areas," Johnson said. "As a Councilman, I will be in an excellent position to bring out those problems and work toward their solution and accomplishment," he added.

Johnson said his long experience with city administration together with his industrial engineering background make him "better qualified than other candidates seeking this important post."

"By electing me to the City Council, Torrance citizens will be capitalizing on the administrative abilities which I has shown throughout the years of my city employment," he said.

Reports that Johnson was considering being a candidate for the City Council led to his dismissal from the city post. The dismissal was not a factor in his decision to run, Johnson reports.

What's stopping you from having a fully phoned home?

If you own a two-story house like this Early American Colonial, you can see how extra extension phones can cover every work and play area for phoning convenience and privacy.

It can't be the cost

Very few things cost less these days. Per day, not even mailing a letter! And what brings so much convenience and comfort to the whole family?

So what's holding you back? We even supply the electric current, you know. And never charge for servicing.

Keep this in mind, too: every important room in your house actually deserves its own phone. That's why many new houses are prewired, with phone outlets in several key locations.

Now, can you think of any reason why you and your family shouldn't have extra phones for better living? No? Then call our Business Office and we'll help you with the planning.
